Non-Fiction/Information text about Workington

Planning for writing

Over the next few days, you are going to have a go at writing your own tourist guide for Workington. Before you begin, you will need to spend some time gathering ideas and thinking about what you would like to write. Here are some tasks to set you off.

- 1) Have a think about all of the things there are to do in Workington. E.g cinema, shopping, eating out and restaurants. etc. Make a written list of your ideas. How many different things can you think of?
- 2) Have a look at the website <https://www.visitworkington.co.uk/>
 - This website, created by the town council, gives lots of extra information about Workington and what there is to see and do when you visit the town.
 - The information is divided into sections and each section has a paragraph of writing to inform the reader.
 - Which sections would you most like to write about when you write your Workington Guide? Who will your guide be aimed at? (the audience) Children, adults, families etc?
 - Use the planner below to help you collect your ideas. Jot down any good words that you have learned in the last couple of days, Think about the adjectives you might use or any facts that you want to include.

Topic Challenge

Here is a picture from somewhere in Workington but where? (It was one of the pictures from Monday's quiz!)

Research:

Where would you find this building in Workington?

Do you know the name of the building?

What was it used for?

Who was it built by?

When was it built?

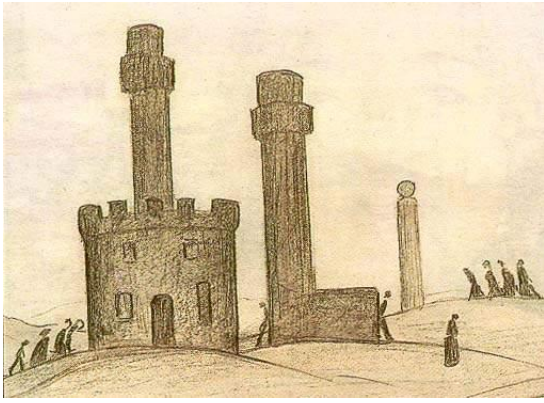

When did it close and why?

Today we are going to look at some more places of interest from around Workington.

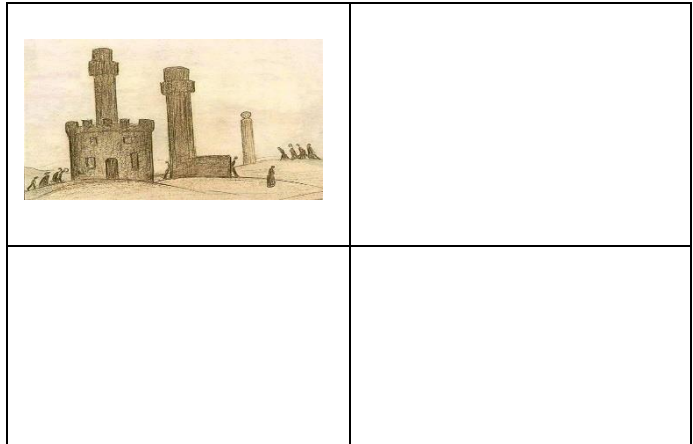

Can you remember doing your Industrial cityscape by L. S. Lowry?

Lowry did a sketch of the place you have been researching. He would often stay at Cleator Moor with his friend Geoffrey Bennett. He painted several pictures of buildings in West Cumbria.

See next page.

We would like you to get a piece of A4 paper and fold it into quarters. (Your fraction knowledge should help you!)

In the first corner, we would like you to sketch this landmark just as Lowry did.

Over the next couple of days, they will be a new place to research. We would like you to build up a collage from around Workington. By the end of the week you should have drawn all the places you have research.
