

Year 6 Home Learning – 15th June

- There's an annual festival in Thailand that pays homage to its many monkeys.
- 165 million cups of tea each day are drunk in the United Kingdom.
- There is a street in the city of Soweto called Vilakazi Street that was once home to two very famous South Africans: Nelson Mandela and Desmond Tutu. Both won Nobel peace prizes.

MATHS

It is time for your final clue. Read through the instructions on the attachment and work out the letter represented by each clock. If the clock pointer goes beyond 26 minutes, you need to work out how many minutes to the next hour instead.

ENGLISH

Using your design from Friday's task, prepare a written statement to the press about the newly discovered species. Try to make your work at least half a page of A4. Describe the species in detail, describe where it was found and by who.

Science

Have a go at the dissolving experiment on the attached resource. Write a method for what you did, what you observed happening and why it happened.
